A day after the Anti-Drug Abuse Awareness Marathon, the National Service Scheme (NSS) organized a prize distribution ceremony, and the screening of the film Chhichhore. The event aimed to build upon the previous day's awareness initiative by combining recognition, reflection, and visual learning.

The programme commenced with an invocation of prayer by Aishwarya, creating a calm and grounded start to the evening, followed by the soulful rendition of Vande Maataram, performed by Saumya, Akshita, and Devananda, which added a unifying patriotic spirit to the event.

The programme also included a brief yet meaningful awareness message by Prathiksha from 2nd year, EEE, who spoke about the growing issue of substance use among students. She highlighted the importance of making informed choices, understanding the long-term consequences of addiction, and supporting peers who may be vulnerable. Her message added a valuable student perspective to the overall theme of the event.

A dedicated awareness speech was given by Somesh Bharathwaj, who delivered a heartfelt Tamil message highlighting the emotional, psychological, and social consequences of substance abuse. His speech resonated strongly with the audience and reinforced the day's theme.

The first formal address was delivered by Dr. D. Venkatraman, NSS Program Coordinator, who reflected on the success of the previous day's marathon. He emphasized the importance of sustained awareness, responsible decision-making, and continued student involvement in NSS initiatives.

A powerful mime performance by R Arun Kumar and team followed, visually depicting the struggles associated with addiction and the significance of making strong, conscious choices. The silent performance conveyed an impactful narrative and evoked deep reflection among the audience.
