The latest ban by the government will again be a hit for the app industry as the government had earlier banned 59 popular Chinese apps that were hugely popular among the Indian masses. The move can be seen in the light of ongoing tension between China and India in Eastern Ladakh.

The United States said on September 1, 2020 that it will not work with an international cooperative effort to develop, manufacture and equally distribute COVID-19 Vaccine. The Trump Administration stated that it does not want to be constrained by multilateral groups like the World Health Organization. The United States wants to keep itself out of the international effort to find the COVID-19 vaccine mainly due to the involvement of the World Health Organisation. ## 7. Appointments Committee of Cabinet approves restructuring of Railway Board, Current Chairman named CEO.

The Cabinet Appointment Panel has approved the appointment of Railway Board Chairman, Vinod Kumar Yadav as the CEO of the board. This move has started the long-pending organizational restructuring of National transporter. In December 2019, the Union Government had approved the restructuring of the Railway Board, which has now been downsized from 8 members to 5.

The restructuring exercise of the organizational structure, beginning with the Rail Board, aims to ensure better efficiency while also avoiding cross-departmental frictions. The restructuring exercise has been carried out broadly on the recommendations of the Bibek Debroy committee on the Indian Railways. The report of the committee presented in 2015 mentioned that the centralized structure and departmentalization of the Indian Railways has been adversely affecting the work-culture of Railways and also narrowing its approach to department-specific goals.

A Virtual Shortfilm - An Attempt by II MSW Students

At the latter end of April, the first-year MSW students took an initiative for spreading awareness about using your time during the lockdown period fruitfully. The only good thing about COVID-19 was that it gave us all a lot of free time, but using this time productively amidst the stress of a pandemic was a daunting task. We hoped to hint our audience at the possibility of expanding their comfort zones through the comfort of their houses, and for this, we borrowed the medium of Short Film.

The technology was there and we had the plan; what mattered now was execution. We discussed a storyline and wrote the scripts accordingly, everyone who acted in the Short Film was only told what their part is and what the scenario that it takes place in, the rest was left to their creativity. The entire video was to be shot on their mobiles, some sought the help of their parents and siblings to handle the camera and the others did it themselves. One week later, all of us had recorded our parts and compiled them together, now the only thing that remained was to edit all the clips together. A black and white theme was used to help create uniformity among the visuals; after all that work our Short Film was ready to be released.

Now five months later, we have received the Certificate of Participation for the "Thanithiru Padamedu" programme hosted by Puthiya Thalaimurai and Thozhamail in partnership with UNICEF for our efforts. We would like to thank all the faculties of the Social Work Department and Varunanvelu Sir for enrolling our Short Film to the contest. We hope that our humble effort was able to ember a spark in at least one person who has viewed it and make them realize that whatever the circumstance might be, the time you spend improving yourself is not time wasted.

Child Rights and COVID-19

Dr.POOJA KANDULA

EMAIL: kpoojareddy@gmail.com

The novel coronavirus disease (COVID-19), declared a global pandemic in March has impacted everyone. It has had a catastrophic effect on the economy as well as social issues.

Experience says that any disaster makes poor and marginalized communities more vulnerable; women and children are the worst affected.

Emergencies like COVID-19 have prevented social workers from visiting villages due to reduced mobility and the lockdown. During the COVID-19 crisis, the attention of social workers has shifted to supporting family livelihoods thus creating a vacuum in child protection mechanisms.

In the last three months we have seen a record rise in vulnerability of children; children have been extremely affected by the social and economic disruptions caused by COVID-19. The pandemic unleashed a perfect storm into the lives of marginalised children. A single disaster can produce a cascading effect that could create an unforeseen chain of secondary or multiple risks. For instance, the recent COVID-19 pandemic caused serious uncertainty to the life, property and livelihood of millions of families. Schools and Anganwadis were the first to close as the world's largest school lunch programme has been disrupted by the pandemic. Thus pushing 115 million children in India to a risk of malnutrition.

We have also noticed the impact of digital partition on children from marginalized communities who were completely distanced from any kind of learning due to lack of digital devices. Available data indicates that only approximately a quarter of households (24%) in India have access to the internet and there is a large rural-urban and gender divide. The learning gap is likely to widen across high, middle and low-income families, as children from economically disadvantaged families cannot access remote learning.

Media has extensively covered issues of children during the pandemic; we have seen articles of children walking for miles to those who have committed suicide due to the lack of access to online education. This pandemic has taken all the efforts put in by child rights workers back in time by over 10 years.

It's time for all child rights social workers to bring their A game forward to ensure the voices of these children are heard as active partners and not just as passive recipients. It is important for us to have a discourse on child rights at the policy level to ensure that rights of children are safeguarded. While we are responding to the pandemic, we also have to establish proper child protection mechanisms to ensure safety of children at times like these.

The Impact of Pandemic on Social Cohesion: The need for rebuilding social capital by replacing the term “Social Distancing” with physical distancing and social integration.

-Mr. K. Jishnu Pawan, MSW, BSc (N).

Introduction:

Amid the outbreak of a pandemic, people around the world are forced to physically distance each other as a measure to prevent the spread of novel coronavirus. The act of physical distancing is globally acclaimed as “Social Distancing”, which has created an image of “social isolation” of all people who have been infected by the virus or people who are susceptible of getting the infection. In addition to this, the whole pandemic dilemma has made people to restrict social gatherings and occasional visits to their near and dear that they used to do before the pandemic had taken a toll. Another outcome of this unprecedented event is stigmatization of COVID 19 affected individuals. Altogether there is disruption of normal life due to the impact of pandemic which has deteriorated the traditional social support system which existed among people before the outbreak of coronavirus. Virtual world of social networking has helped us to remain connected during the pandemic, but it has increased our chances of depending too much on technology and has also made us vulnerable of having technology addiction especially in children as amid lock down most of us are restricted to stay at home itself. Hence it is essential to make interventions at social level by rebuilding the social capital through generating awareness about the importance of social integration at the times of crisis like this.

Methodology:

The study will utilize an ex-post facto research design where an effect will be traced that has happened or taken place because of probable causes. Ex-post facto research design uses systematic empirical inquiry and the researcher here does not have direct influence on the independent variable as it is a field based study which tries to systematically discover interactions or relations among variables in real life situations.

SOCIAL AND EMOTIONAL LEARNING LIGHTING UP THE WAY FOR CHILDREN IN TODAY'S ERA

AFFILIATION OF AUTHOR:

INTRODUCTION:

Intelligence Quotient (IQ) is no longer enough required for a complete well being in today's era . Growing research shows that without strong social and emotional intelligence, one is not equipped with all the tools and skills that one requires to succeed in life.

IQ only connects the brain but whereas Emotional and Social Intelligence connects brain with heart . Here the brain and heart of a person meets which make one person into a positive human being . IQ may stay for a shorter period of time and it is beneficial only to the individual but the Emotional and Social Intelligence stays throughout the person's life and is beneficial not only to the individual but also to one's family , to community and to the society as a whole. In today's period the Social and Emotional Intelligence are given more importance at all walks of life and the person with a high level of Emotional and Social Intelligence are highly respected and noticed then the person with more IQ. By connecting these two terms of Emotional and Social Intelligence the term "Social and Emotional Learning(SEL) derived. Through this learning process the importance of Social and Emotional Intelligence can be taught to the people which help them to transform into a positive and healthy human being.

(According to the Collaborative for Academic, Social, and Emotional Learning (CASEL), an organization that works toward integrated social-emotional learning for preschool through high school, "social and emotional learning (SEL) is the process through which children and adults acquire and effectively apply the knowledge, attitudes, and skills necessary to understand and manage emotions, set and achieve positive goals, feel and show empathy for others, establish and maintain positive relationships, and make re-

(SEL referred to as socio-emotional learning or social-emotional literacy.

People with strong social-emotional skills are better equipped to manage daily challenges, build positive relationships, and make informed decisions. SEL helps students and adults thrive in school and in life. And the skills can be taught and learned from preschool all the way through adulthood.)<sup>2</sup>

This is more important for the children as they want to know how to manage emotions, solve problems, and get along with others. These kinds of skills have to be developed, and children need to learn them as it will help them to succeed in their life.

(Social and emotional learning brings in the ability to successfully communicate, resolve conflict, interact with others, and manage emotional responses .It helps children to do better in the classroom and in life. Fostering social and emotional well-being is a key component in improving conditions for learning. )<sup>3</sup>

( CASEL divides social emotional learning into five categories based on their skills as ,

Self-awareness

Self-awareness is being able to recognize and comprehend one's emotions and how they translate into our behaviors. This includes recognizing stress or negative emotions, being aware of one's abilities and weaknesses as well as a "well-grounded sense of self-efficacy and optimism,"

Self-management

Self-management takes self-awareness one step further into the ability to regulate one's feelings and behaviors. This can include controlling anger, handling stress, self-motivation, or persistence through setbacks.

Social awareness

Social awareness looks outward and is about empathizing with others and possessing a willingness to understand and respect the unique experiences, norms, and behaviors of others.

Relationship skills

This section is about creating and maintaining healthy relationships through cooperation, active listening, conflict resolution, and communication.

Responsible decision-making

This final section is about making safe, healthy choices that abide by one's positive and healthy personal moral code and benefit their well-being — and the well-being of others.)<sup>4</sup>

CONNECTING SOCIAL AND EMOTIONAL LEARNING WITH MENTAL HEALTH

(Social and emotional learning (SEL) is increasingly recognized as playing a critical role in the promotion of positive mental health and the prevention of mental health disorders among children and youth )<sup>5</sup>

“Schools are primarily concerned with education, mental health is essential to learning as well as to social and emotional development. Because of this important interplay between emotional health and school success, schools must be partners in the mental health care of children”. This will promote the way for enjoying positive mental health through social and emotional learning . Positive Social and Emotional skills are protective factors for mental health .

( A key focus of SEL is to promote positive development through the fostering of social and emotional skills that form the foundation of mental well-being and success in life. Skills such as understanding and managing emotions and behaviors, solving personal and interpersonal problems, building healthy coping strategies, and developing self-esteem and confidence, help children cope with difficulties and build positive relationships, increasing their resilience so that they are better able to deal with life’s challenges.)<sup>5</sup>

( Mental health is not a static state that exists only within a child, but is also influenced by the interactions between the child and his or her environment. Thus, integrating SEL into teaching practices will not only enhance social and emotional skills in the individual child, but will also help to create safe and supportive environments in which all children feel they belong, reduce the stigma of mental health difficulties, and encourage help-seeking when children need it, promoting mental well-being in all children.)<sup>5</sup>

Here SEL is very essential for promoting positive mental health for the children at their younger age which stays throughout as their life sustaining skills.

IMPLICATIONS TO THE PRACTITIONERS:

In this area of Social and Emotional Learning (SEL) the social workers as professionals have greater scope to work with and make SEL to reach out to the people. The SEL is the readily available life learning skills which will add value to the life and make the people to lead a meaningful life. These value added skills enhance the quality of life of the people and make everyone understand all living beings are equal in this world as it directly leads the world in non-violence path. As professionals first these social emotional skills are needed to the social workers where they can take it out to the people by availing those skills by themselves.

The school social workers can work by starting to teach the social emotional skills through SEL platform thereby all the children will learn the importance of these skills and practice in their life which will sculpt them into complete human beings with all the essential skills required for happy and worthy living. With SEL they can face all the situations in their life and it will create a positive and healthy relationship with fellow human beings.

As clinical social workers , they can help all the people to have positive mental health as it will enrich and enhance the people’s well being.

At the community level the social workers can create awareness on SEL and bring it to peoples practice by making them to imply all the social emotional skills in their daily activities at individual , family and at community base

Social and Emotional Learning(SEL) is the life learning skills which will make the human complete and strong enough to live his life to the fullest in a positive,worthwhile and meaningful way.

CONCLUSION:

Thus Social and Emotional Learning (SEL) is in the spotlight in today’s era . It is the life booming value skills for all human beings , especially to the children which will enable them to understand the quality and meaning of positive living all through their life.
